Call for participation

The upcoming CercleS training week, “Co-operation, collaboration and integration: the role of LSP instructors in higher education” will take place in Namur (Belgium) and will bring together around 30 participants from across Europe for four days of exchange, reflection, and hands-on collaboration.

Focus of the week

This training week will provide a forum for exploring innovative forms of collaboration between language instructors and content specialists, with the aim of enhancing student learning. Key areas of focus include:

- Co-operation between language instructors and content specialists
- Interdisciplinary collaboration and program integration
- Research-driven pedagogical strategies to support diverse learners

Program overview

The program combines academic insight and practical engagement, with all sessions conducted in English:

- 3 plenary presentations on recent research and innovative perspectives on cooperation and collaboration in higher education language teaching.
- 6 interactive Workshops focusing on experience sharing and group work. Typical topics include: the design of interdisciplinary teaching modules, the development of practical teaching resources, critical reflection on pedagogical practices, and effective strategies for cooperation and integration.
